BRAVE MISSIONARIES.

Their Escape from Death by Apparently Providential Interposition.

It is a clear, bright morning in the summer of 1884, but the sun that shines so brilliantly upon Rangoon looks down upon a strange and startling spectacle, writes David K. in one of his New York Times Burma letters. The whole town seems to be out of doors, and every street is a surging sea of wild faces livid with fear or black with rage. All along the rude defenses which face toward the river a mob of ragged Burmese soldiers are swarming like ants over the crumbling earthworks and half-faded batteries, piling up rusty cannon balls and dragging honeycombed guns to and fro as if preparing for the coming of an enemy. Such is, indeed, the case, for if you look in the direction whither their scowling eyes turn restlessly over and over, you will see far down the broad, winding river, towering high above the dark mass of jungle that clothes its banks, the white sails of several stately men-of-war, with the British flag waving above them. The "white-faced boats" whence the royal Thunb of Burma has so long insulted and defied have come at last to demand satisfaction in earnest.

But the thickets throng and the loudest uproar concentrate themselves upon the great market near the landing place, where a roaring whirlpool of gnashing teeth and glaring eyes and clonched hands and brandished weapons and wolfish yells boils and eddies round two unarmed white men, bound, helpless, splashed with mud and bleeding from many a bruise, but still wearing a look of quiet and fearless calmness that contrasts very strikingly with the howling fury of the human wolves around them. Missionaries and men of peace though they are, they have in their veins the bold American blood of the warriors of Bunker Hill and Valley Forge, and now, saved from instant death at the hands of the mob only to perish by the slower and more deliberate murder of so-called "law," they stand amid this riot of demons as calm and undaunted as ever.

"When the doomed men are dragged before the Raywood (Governor) of the city that worthy New is somewhat at a loss what to do. "To any consideration of more humanity he is as inensible as an English work-house guardian; but, being a shade less ignorant than the imbruted ruffians around him, he knows that the white men can fight, and that if they should take the town the murder of these two victims will be forever avenged. But his feeble remonstrances are drowned by the bloodthirsty yell of the rabble, and the Governor, like a second Pilot, sacrifices his conscience—such as it is—to the clamor of a ruffianly mob. The two prisoners are sentenced to immediate death and orders are given to carry them to the place of execution and behold them forthwith.

The words of doom are hailed with a roar of savage joy, and the sea of fierce faces and tossing arms poured out of the narrow street in one great wave, sweeping along with their victims, behind whom stalks the executioner himself, a gaunt, scowling, frightful creature, with no clothing save a blood-stained cloth around his loins, the hideous spots on whose wolfish face mark him as one of those miserable criminals who have redeemed their own worthless lives from death by accepting the degrading office of inflicting death upon their fellow-men. As the ghastly procession moves onward the wretch flourishes his broad-bladed knife above the heads of the doomed missionaries, and at every step of this grim pantomime a howl of cruel triumph rises from the savage throng around them.

But even in this deadly peril with the shadow of the grave deepening around them, the two brave Americans never flinch for a moment. All the taunts and curses of the murderous rabble move them not a whit, and when they reach the place of death their only words are: "Brother, we shall meet again in Heaven." The Governor gives the fatal signal, the crowd falls back to right and left, the grim band approaches his victims with brandished knife and forces them down upon their knees.

"Where is your God, now, Christian?" cries the savage, with a jeering laugh. "For to say that He is all powerful—let Him save you then if He can."

"If it be His will," answers one of the self-devoted heroes, "He can save us even now."

The dauntless words are scarcely uttered when there comes a roar as if the earth were rent in twain, a thick fog of hot, stifling smoke makes all darkness as night—and in the grim hush that followed is heard the crash of falling roofs, mingled with shrieks of agony and cries of terror. When the smoke clears away the two Americans find themselves kneeling alone amid the vast spaces which were lately so crowded. Far to the distance their cruel enemies are fleeing like hunted sheep, while a few paces off lies the headless corpse of the savage executioner, struck dead by an English cannon-ball, but still clutching in his stiffening hand the huge knife which was to have drunk their blood.

What follows is the mere mockery of a battle. The valiant Governor and his officers have already taken to their heels and the feeble and unskillful fire of the few who attempt resistance is speedily crushed by the tremendous broadsides of the English men-of-war. An hour later the British blue jackets pour into the town, only to find it already deserted, and bear back with them in triumph the two gallant missionaries who lived for many years after to tell how God had remembered his servants in their sorest need.

Punning at Death's Door.
A story is told of a man who suffered severely from ague, which neither medicine nor charms could alleviate, but being advised to devote himself to punning became so interested in the pursuit that he speedily laughed himself into robust health. It can not be denied that a hearty laugh, even at the cost of a bone, is no mean thing in itself, and has often been known to be of inestimable service at the crisis of a serious malady. A physician visiting one of the brotherhood, who was in extremis, apologized for being late one day, but said he had been to see a man who had fallen down a well. "Did he kick the bucket, doctor?" groaned the punster. Again, the story is told, if we remember rightly, of Theodore Hook, who, as he lay dying, enquired of a friend, to whom he remarked: "Plenty of mustard, my boy, but very little beef."

A Cow Commits Suicide.
The suicide of a cow in Muscatine County, Ia., reported to the Boston Globe, furnishes new and execrable pointers for persons contemplating an excursion over the divide. The animal backed up to a tree, perched her tail over a limb, then walked around the tree until the firs were wound up, and in this position stood and pulled till starvation ended her sufferings.

The Panama Canal seems to be the biggest wreck of the age. The company owns about $800,000,000 worth of machinery and had debts, the bulk of it in machinery, which will only sell for the price of old iron. The worst of it all is that it was bought with the money, not of the rich of France, but of the class which will be impoverished by the loss. The people are clamorous for the French government to take the property and finish the canal, but this cannot be done, as it would violate a positive pledge made by that government to the United States when DeLesseps began upon his great scheme.

The Philadelphia Record sings this across the Atlantic Ocean at the English government: If Premier Salisbury thinks he can afford as by not sending a silk-stocking diplomat to live in Washington, he is woefully mistaken. Ministers are of no more practical use, as long as the ocean cable works freely and at fair rates, than side-whiskers would be on a statue of Cupid. We should not suffer either in pride or in purse, if we did not see another official Britisher while Lord Salisbury shall hold his precarious place.

The yearly consuming demand in coffee is 6,000,000 bags. The 1887-8 crop was 3,000,000 bags, the 1888-9 crop, 6,000,000, and the 1889-90 crop is estimated at 5,000,000, which would make an annual average of 4,666,666 bags for three years. It is said, therefore, by the experts, that all things point to a continuance of high prices for some years. Coffee-consumers look to Brazil for a-out two-thirds of the entire supply of the world.

ASSEMBLYMAN POULADE's opposition to the sawdust resolution is not calculated to make him many friends in this county. He would have been held in higher respect if he had killed it outright without tacking on a senseless amendment to the effect that the committee appointed should visit Sacramento at their own expense. By the way, how about that $800 mileage business? Oh! consistency thou art a jewel.

SENATOR BOYLE and others are going to ask the Legislature for a franchise to build a canal to tap Lake Tahoe for the purpose of getting water for irrigating the waste lands of Eagle and Carson Valleys. Should they be successful the work will all be done by private capital and we think it would be a wise thing to grant them what they ask for.

Ten sales of liquor in the legal-ized rum shops of Maine the past year have amounted to nearly $80,000. Portland folks had occasion to use about $17,000 worth of rum and whiskey; Bangor and Biddeford each consumed "medicines" to the amount of $9,000, Bangor invalids running to rum more than other drink, while Biddeford's favorite was whiskey.

Of fifty Mormon recruits who left Birmingham, Ala., recently for Salt Lake City, only nine could read and write. Eighteen of the fifty were girls between twelve and twenty years of age, sixteen were women between twenty and forty, and the others were men and boys.

The Democratic Senators continue to offer amendments, which are promptly voted down, to the Senate tariff bill. The steam tug, Kalia, which was missing at San Francisco this morning, arrived at Valparaiso this afternoon. She went ashore last night and was not seen off until this morning.

Advisers from Hayti are to the effect that on the break of yellow fever on board the United States steamer, Galena, caused Admiral Loe to leave Hayti waters.

The Interstate Commerce Commissioners are said to be much pleased over the agreement reached today by the President of the trunk lines of railroads.

A TERRIBLE DISASTER.

One Hundred People Destroyed—Many Injured.

READING, Pa., Jan. 10.—There is mourning and sorrow in many households in Reading to-day. A pall of lead hangs over the city. Fathers, mothers, brothers, sisters, relatives and friends are grief-stricken over the wreck of last night. Over one hundred spirits were hushed forever in death, as the result of the wreck and ruin wrought in this city by the storm. The cyclone left the entire city in larkens, relieved subsequently by the electric lights and huge bonfires which shed a lurid glare on the scene of death. All night long, brave and willing hands assisted in the work of rescue.

The disaster is fully as bad as reported last night. The list of fatal cases will reach fully 100, and perhaps more. The hospitals and undertakers, establishments are filled with the victims; the physicians are all busy, and many private houses have been opened for the accommodation of the injured. This morning everything is directly in contrast with the fury of last night. All is again bright and glorious in the heavens, as though mocking the work of last night.

The Polish Church disaster of several months ago was one of the most horrible accidents that has startled this community, but the loss of life by that fatal cave-in sinks into comparative insignificance when placed on a parallel with the awful visitation of last evening.

Mayor Kenney, at two o'clock this morning, issued the following proclamation: "I hereby earnestly appeal to the professional, business and other citizens who may be able to favorably respond, to meet at the court house this afternoon at 1:30 o'clock, to devise ways and means to aid the injured and assist the families of those who perished, last night in the fall of the silk mill, and at the Philadelphia Reading railroad paint shops. The fearful cyclone that struck this city at 5:30 last evening has brought sorrow and want to many of our people who are in such circumstances as to be unable to meet the emergency, and the occasion calls loudly for immediate action. Quick to respond to others in distress, do not fail to do speedy justice to our own grief-stricken people."

The work of the rescue is greatly retarded from the singular manner in which the silk mill collapsed. It did not fall, but was badly crushed down, turning in upon itself in one mass. Not a vestige of the walls remain standing above the stone foundation, and the rafters and timbers of the flooring project in all directions. The building was steam heated and the ruins did not take fire, otherwise not one of the unfortunates could possibly have escaped death in its most appalling form.

The only eye-witness to the disaster as far as known, was Mrs. Gemmill, residing near the mill. "About twenty minutes of 6 o'clock," said she to an Associated Press reporter, "I heard an awful crash, and thinking it was the new house being put alongside of us, I ran to the front door. A great cloud of dust hung over the silk mill, and I could hear the crashing of the timbers and the roar of the falling walls, and the next moment I saw the mill in a great heap of ruins, from the midst of which came such an awful moaning and groaning and terrible cries as I never want to hear again. Not a soul did I see come out of the mill, and it seemed many minutes to me before anybody came to the spot."

Teams of every description—omnibuses, funeral coaches, fire wagons, hospital vans and private vehicles—were pressed into service, and were running rapidly to and from the scene of the disaster all night, bearing the bodies of the wounded, dying and dead to their homes or the hospitals.

From the statements of some of those who escaped from the building, it appears to have gone in an instant. There was a loud crash of the breaking timber, and the persons in the mill all rushed toward the main doors, and a good many succeeded in getting out. Four girls saved themselves by jumping from the second story windows.

The first rumbling noise was followed instantly by the falling of the building, the upper stories going first with its human load. Had it not been for the fact that but a few of the hands were on the third and fourth floors at the time, scarcely a life would have been saved. George Grimshaw, one of the proprietors of the mill, who barely escaped with his life, having received several severe wounds, stated that there were about two hundred and seventy-five persons, principally girls and boys, in the establishment at the time of the occurrence.

Up to eight o'clock this morning, a large majority of the victims were still in the ruins. Grimshaw gives the following list of the killed, injured, and missing reported to him: This list accounts for about two hundred:

Killed—Ella Leed, E. B. Harry, Kroker, William Snyder, Sophie Winkelman and Carrie Kershner. Injured: Annie Leed, Annie Fry, Augustus Roscup, John Reber, Annie Loveland, Addie Shade, Florence Phillips, Lizzie Haws, Becky Hayer, Harry Bricker, Osman Stash, Becky Pounds, Mary Evans, Sallie Savage, Sarah Evans, Ella Kress, Ella Pfum, Agnes Savage, Nora Saylor, Annie Bricker, Ella Reintour, Mary Fitzpatrick, Katie Bowman, Lottie Saylor, Sallie E. Bright, Laura Wright, Ida Schaefer, Amanda Schaefer, Ella Krick, Ella Carl, Bertha Taylor, Clara Noll and Katie Hartman.

Missing: Katie Alspach, Celia Ritter, Clara Alspach, Mildred Langer, Lizzie Rowland, Katie Yeager, Lizzie Owens, Sally Baum, Sallie O'Neill, Ella Bucher, Laura Gebrit, Carrie Hartman, Barbara Seibelmer, Emma Deemer, Sallie Bickel, Lizzie Martin, Mary Wooten, Irene Dickson, Emma Presser, Dollie Haines, Laura Hoffmann, Mary Hartman, Sallie Hason, Amelia Christman, Ida Miller, Annie Saylor, Harry Hoffmaster, Charles Hoyer, Hester Snyder, Eliza Lambert, Minnie Hays, Fanny Unthamer, Minnie Vogel, Wellington Lengle, James Hammond, James Finn, Charles Dapler, Frederick Reiff, Edward Brookway, James Nevin, Charles Finn, Harry Fisher, Howard Shader, Harry Templin, Amelia Roseler, Lena Snyder, Maggie Rowe, Gertrude Speck, Emma Pfum, Sophia Frees, John Nevin, Philip Sidel, Clayton Ludwig, Frank Mohm, George Hethman, William Grow, Harry Fidler, Jacob Seidel, Benton Fidler, Carrie Moyer, Annie Rowe, Mary Fay, Charles Reider, Howard Lee, Samuel Ficks, Emma Eichner, Katie Coxon, Annie Shade, Gertrude Bickel, Mary Alt, Alice Lond, Clara Fox, Katie Link, Laura Kerscher, Mary Scheiffe, Mamie Hedley, Katie Gunther, Celia Hecker, Annie Dreibeis, Mary Reiser, Daisy Hecker, Sallie Young, Pauline A. The big tower and smoke stack at the silk mill and ten feet of the western wall remain standing. The following is a correct list of the killed and injured at the Philadelphia and Reading paint shops, which was struck by the cyclone, and the men enveloped in flames by the explosion of the gas chambers in nine passenger cars. Killed—Allen Landenberg, head, legs and arms missing; John Foreman, crushed to death; John U. Kohler, head crushed; S. Jones, burned to death; G. A. Schaeffer, legs burned off.

Injured—George Knabb, seriously, and Aaron Landell, arm broken. Loss to the railroad company, $85,000; to the silk mill, $110,000. Eight more bodies have been taken out and exactly how many more are in the ruins is a matter of conjecture.

A General Storm. CHICAGO, Jan. 10.—The dispatches from many points in Michigan, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa and Wisconsin, indicate that yesterday's storm was general throughout the north-west, although most severe in northern Wisconsin and Michigan. In Wisconsin there was a fall of snow of from four inches to three feet.

New York, Jan. 10.—The disastrous storm of last evening started from over Lake Erie and worked south over Pennsylvania with a cyclone motion, the fall of it striking New York, and then whipped out to sea, having given Long Island a small dose of the force. New York did not receive the full force of the wind storm. In this state, while the wind did considerable damage, the heavy rain-fall was the principal feature. In New England, the water in many places fell in the form of snow. The steamer George Appold, which went ashore yesterday morning on Long Island Sound, had been wrecked, but the crew were saved after great exertions by the life crew. At Carlsbad, Pa., the government training school for Indians, and a number of other buildings were roofed.

WHEELING, Jan. 10.—The storm here did a great amount of damage in this city and the neighboring counties bordering on the Ohio. All through the surrounding country many buildings were unroofed and otherwise damaged.

HARRISBURG, Jan. 10.—The storm here was destructive and terrific. Houses were unroofed and many buildings wrecked. The school-house was unroofed, creating a panic among teachers and children, but fortunately none were killed.

DETROIT, Jan. 10.—The wires to Niagara Falls are all down, but a private message says that the foot bridge and the suspension bridge were blown down.

LOCKPORT, N. Y., Jan. 10.—The suspension bridge nearest the falls was carried away by the gale at 3 o'clock this morning and deposited in the river. The towers and cables remain intact. The material was owned by the Niagara Falls and Clifton Suspension Bridge Companies. Loss $75,000. The bridge will probably be rebuilt as soon as possible. All points of interest along the river at the waters edge, suffered more or less. The water was never known so high.

SUNBURY, Pa., Jan. 10.—Albert Williams, injured at the Sunbury nail mill during last night's storm, died this morning. The search for the bodies is still going on.

A Prearranged Fight. SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 10.—The light weights, Mulholland, champion of Australia, and Billy Mahan, champion of the Pacific Coast, met at the Golden Gate Athletic Club last night. The fight was the longest ever had on the Coast. At 3:30 this morning, at the end of the eighty-eighth round, the fight was declared a draw.

The battle commenced at 9:40 and continued until 3:30 this morning. Mulholland proved himself superior in science and quickness, but Mahan showed all the qualities of a game and hard fighter.

About the fifteenth round it seemed almost certain that Mulholland would win, as he had been punished very little, while Mahan's lips and cheeks were badly swollen, his eyes nearly closed and he had lost one tooth. However, Mulholland did not seem able to give the knockout blow, and during the last two hours of the fight Mahan was as fresh as his antagonist, and administered some severe punishment on Mulholland's wind. Both men slipped and fell to the floor several times during the battle, but the only clean knock-down was in the fifty-second round, when Mulholland was sent under the ropes by a terrific blow in the stomach.

After it became apparent that neither of the men was likely to be knocked out, there were numerous demands for a draw, and the referee finally consented to the proposition, after the battle had lasted five hours and three quarters, when both men were too weak to strike a hard blow.

Searching for the Dead. PITTSBURG, Jan. 10.—The search for the victims in the ruins wrought by yesterday's storm proceeded all night, and will be vigorously continued until the debris is cleared away. This will probably take several days, and the exact number of victims will not be known until the work is completed. This morning the mangled remains of John Rogerson and Thomas Jones, bricklayers, were found under the walls of the Weldon building. Joseph Gehring, aged 16, was rescued last night.

This morning the death list foots up to 11; 33 wounded and 8 missing. A number of the wounded are in a critical condition and deaths are momentarily expected. There are all kinds of rumors in regard to the number still in the ruins. One of the men working on the building yesterday said that he is certain there are at least 12 more. This is believed to be too high, and it is thought that there are but 8 still in the ruins. There is no hope of any now in the ruins being alive, so that it is safe to say the death list will exceed a score. The Morgue was besieged with callers all day, and many heart-rending scenes were enacted, as the visitors discovered in the bruised, distorted features of the dead, the well-known faces of their loved ones.

The officials are satisfied that at least twenty persons are still in the wreck. Many eye witnesses state that they are positive when the first shock occurred, a number of persons were in the alley back of the Weldon and adjacent stores. "I have no doubt," said Coroner McDowell, "that twenty-five or thirty more people lie buried in the ruins. Several persons say they saw a large crowd of men run into the alley, which was the next moment, filled with debris twenty-five feet deep." At 1 o'clock this afternoon the list of the dead had increased to fourteen; the bodies of five of whom have not been recovered, but it is known positively that they are in the ruins.

Lost on a Peak. NASHVILLE, Jan. 10.—Merrin Thompson of Cleveland and Bert Schiller fought a fierce fight of twenty-eight rounds, London prize ring rules, near here yesterday. Both were fully battered up. Thompson really whipped Schiller, but the fight was given to the latter on a foul, Thompson having struck him while on his knees in the twenty-eighth round.

A General Council. LOWER BRULE AGENCY, Dakota, Jan. 10.—The Indians of this agency have decided to call a general council of the Sioux, at Rosebud Agency to select a delegation of Chiefs to go to Washington to negotiate the sale of their lands.

Niagara Bridge Reported Wrecked. NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—It is reported here that the new suspension bridge at Niagara was blown down yesterday, but is impossible to verify the rumor on account of the general prostration of the telegraph wires.

An Agreement Reached. NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—The Presidents of the Western railroads met again today, and reached an agreement for the maintenance of full rates.
